APPLICATION

Digital Marketing Manager, Helsinki

Dear Ingela,

Bluefors builds the infrastructure the quantum industry runs on. For many physicists and QPU teams, the first encounter with that infrastructure is the website. I want to make sure that visit turns into a conversation with Sales, and that is why I'm applying for the Digital Marketing Manager role.

I have 13 years of digital marketing experience in Finnish B2B tech. At Videobot I manage the website, brand and content: I plan marketing strategies, improve UX/UI and combine creative ideas with data to run campaigns. At Leadoo I managed website content and UI design together with our WordPress developer, and ran video production from strategy to publishing. At Management Events my video content supported lead generation and brand visibility across 11 countries. I have also run my own content marketing business, Lumux, since 2013.

To show how I would approach the role, I prepared a Bluefors Digital Playbook (attached):

- A homepage audit with eight findings ranked by commercial impact. For example, the homepage cites 1 500 installed systems while LinkedIn says 1,800 delivered, and the only call to action asks for a sales conversation.
- A KPI framework that runs from first visit to Salesforce pipeline.
- A Q4 2026 content calendar built around NYC Quantum Summit, the Xanadu partnership and Q2B Chicago, with six LinkedIn drafts ready for review.

I come to this role from the website, brand and content side. In my first months I would go deep on Salesforce and marketing automation together with IT and Sales, starting with an audit of lead sources and campaign structure. Few candidates can both measure the funnel and produce what goes into it: the video, the landing page and the post. I can do both.

I would welcome the chance to discuss how I can help build Bluefors' digital ecosystem. I will also try to reach you during your call slot on 13 October.

Kind regards,

Kira Krysanov
