Essity · Brand & Marketing

Re: Senior Brand Manager, Libero Nordics (Essity265472) · preferred base: Espoo

Every family's first years are full of barriers worth breaking. I'd like to help Libero break them, market by market.

Dear Hiring Manager,

For many Nordic parents, Libero is a brand they have known twice: once as babies, and again as parents. Keeping a brand that familiar fresh, relevant and growing across four markets is exactly the kind of work I want to do next. That's why I'm applying for the Senior Brand Manager role.

For more than ten years I have turned brand direction into work that performs in market. At Videobot and Leadoo I owned the visual brand and made sure every touchpoint, from website to sales material, told the same story. At Management Events I supported lead generation and brand visibility across operations in 11 countries, where one central message had to work for many local teams. And since 2013 I have run my own business, Lumux, which keeps me close to what clients actually pay for: clear goals, honest budgets and measurable results.

One brand, many markets

I know how to keep a brand consistent while giving local teams room to win.

Strategy into activation

I turn plans into concrete, on-time execution, and follow up on the numbers.

Partner across functions

I build trust with sales, creative and tech, and keep everyone aligned on one target.

I'll be open about where I'll grow fastest. My background is in brand and marketing in tech and services rather than FMCG, and I haven't yet worked hands-on with Nielsen data. I learn tools and categories quickly, and I've attached a short concept, Libero Nordics: one brand, four markets, to show how I'd approach the role in my first 90 days and how I think about activation, launches and assortment.

I'd love the chance to talk about how I could help Libero grow across the Nordics. Thank you for your time.

Warm regards,

Kira Krysanov
